Festive Concert Art Combines Creative Beauty and Instructional Opportunity

- Mrs. Barb Girone, Art Teacher

This year for the Holiday Concert the Fifth grade students in art class learned about architecture looking at the houses in Brentwood. The students had the choice to bring in photos of their own home or other houses they found interesting to use as their resources for drawing. This project required the students to use the math skills of working to scale with ratios and proportion.

We began the lesson by learning about one point perspective which creates the illusion of depth in drawings. We practiced drawing using a vanishing point and orthogonal lines. The students applied this knowledge to illustrate their houses.

Once the houses were drawn the students started painting them. They had to mix colors using shading and tints to paint in different areas, to create perspective and depth. Once the houses were finished with paint, the students then added details with foil paper and glitter, to decorate them for the holidays.
